Board Delays Action On Teacher Request

The School Committee refused Tuesday to vote immediate recognition of the Andover Teachers Assn. as the exclusive bargaining agent for professional public school employees under terms of the new state collective bargaining law.

The policy board incorporated a professional recognition agreement with the association in its rules and regulations last year, but members are reluctant to further formalize this relationship without first checking into some points of the law and determining more literally the strength of the association.

The committee seemed convinced Tuesday that the local teachers group does in fact speak for most professional people in the system, but the majority indicated it would like to learn through a secret ballot precisely what percentage of the town's some 600 teachers and administrators have authorized the association to negotiate for them.

Teachers' President Bruce L. MacDonald offered as proof of representation a stack of 167 authorization cards signed "voluntarily" by what he said amounts to 84 percent of the professional staff. Gerald H. Silverman, a member of the association's negotiation committee, said the organization actually speaks for about 94% of the teachers but some failed to return their authorization cards before the end of school.

Though Chairman Louis Galbiati did not challenge the association's contention that it obtained these authorization signatures without coercion, he said he did not believe the individual teacher could feel entirely free of pressure when cards were distributed through the schools and it could easily be determined who had not signed.

The committee voted unanimously - though William A. Doherty indicated he saw no need of it - to have Town Counsel Fredric S. O'Brien check into the legality of the proposed agreement and into the likelihood that the State Labor Relations Commission would rule in favor of a balloting should the committee decide to press the point.

The Proposal

What the association proposes is that the committee recognize it and it alone as the bargaining agent for professional school personnel.

It suggests that two bargaining units be organized. One would include classroom teachers, guidance counselors, department heads and special teachers, such as reading specialists etc. The other would bargain for supervisors, directors, principals and assistant principals. Excluded altogether would be superintendents and assistant superintendents.

One point still at issue is the classification of department heads.

Initially the teachers' association contended that it had the legal right to bargain for teachers, administrators etc. in a single unit. Some members of the School Committee, Robert Sherman most vocally, took the position that it would be improper for administrators to associate themselves for bargaining purposes with classroom teachers etc. whose work they must evaluate and supervise.

In making its present proposal the association has advanced the idea of two bargaining units, but has classified department heads

The Next Knock You Hear May Introduce A Tax Man

(A Townsman News Feature)

Keep it friendly!

The field appraisers who are canvassing Andover neighborhoods to collect information for an updating of real estate tax evaluations are really a harmless lot - unless you have something to hide. They are noisy, but this is their business and what they learn should lead to more equitable distribution of the tax burden as assessments are brought into line with current fair market values. If it turns out that a more realistic appraisal of your property means more cash out of pocket for you, take comfort in the knowledge that at last you are carrying your own weight!

When the field worker comes to your door he comes equipped with coded notes about the condition your house or business building was in the last time properties were revalued, about eight years ago. Because lot and building measurements were taken then and detailed descriptions filed, he simply checks these against the records. And if you have added a room or a garage, finished off a portion of your cellar, changed the siding on your house, put in hardwood floors or replumbed, or added a bath - this is the kind of thing he wants to know. You can paint to your heart's content - appraisers are not interested in interior or exterior decoration. They get their pencils going only when what you have done improves the structure in such a way as to affect its basic value.

The nervous housewife needn't be concerned that the appraiser will blush if she has her hair in curlers or that he will take note of piles of laundry or other normal household clutter. His eye is trained to look for taxable details and he is oblivious to most everything else.

What he will notice is any reluctance on your part to let him poke around at will. As one experienced worker reports: "The minute a guy tells you there is nothing worth seeing in his cellar, you just know you've got to go down there."

Valle's Expects To Open Today

At press time it was expected that Valle's Steak House in West Andover would open quietly and informally today, July 7.

A spokesman for the restaurant chain said the company intended to begin operations without fanfare, giving employees an opportunity to start off at a moderate pace. An official opening will be scheduled for later in the season.

Valle's had hoped initially to be ready for an opening prior to Memorial Day.

$1 Tax Cut Approved By State Tax Bureau

Andover has approval for its $1 tax cut.

The official 1966 rate, approved by the Department of Corporations and Taxation of the Commonwealth, was announced Thursday by the Board of Assessors.

This figure reflects the need for $3,740,761.20 in local tax dollars toward anticipated gross expenditures of $6,036,662.54. The town's tax needs this year are in excess of those required a year ago by $466,962.29. The $3.7 million which must be raised from local property taxes is $91,602.40 more than it had to supply in 1965.

The assessors report that although the estimate of the amount to be received from the sales tax is $436,532.53, the actual net gain to the town is less than half that figure because the state has estimated at a lower figure than local officials anticipated receipts from state coffers for such reimbursement items as old age assistance, veterans' services and school and library funds. This is the first year that the Commonwealth has assumed this estimating responsibility and Assessor Russell says the figures used tend to be lower than actual expenditures for such items in 1965. Expenditures this year are almost certain to run higher for these state supported services rather than lower, Russell said. In this event, the state will have to make it up at some later date, which could put Andover in a good fiscal position in 1967.

The cut in "cherry sheet" revenue estimates would have pushed Andover's tax rate $3 higher if the loss had not been

Three Hired For Schools

Three new teachers were hired by the School Committee Tuesday upon the recommendation of Supt. Edward I. Erickson, and a number of staff people were approved for physical education and athletic positions for the fall term.

Miss Mary LaMedica of Revere was approved as a replacement at Sanborn for sixth grade teacher George Walsh who was named earlier this summer to fill the position of acting principal at Stowe School. Miss LaMedica is a graduate of Salem State College and has had teaching experience in Connecticut, Revere and Peabody. Her starting salary: $7,600.

Hired to teach social studies at the junior high school was John Kennedy, a Boston College graduate with a major in history and government. He holds a master's degree in education from Salem State College. Kennedy has taught three years in Salem, N. H. and will be paid $6,450.

Miss Judith Palmer was added to the elementary school music staff. She is a graduate of Boston University with a major in music and has done some work toward an advanced degree. She has a total of three years teaching experience in Worcester and Tewksbury and is currently working as music librarian in Belmont. Andover salary: $6,050.

Supt. Erickson told the committee that he expects the usual 30 new faces on the professional staff this year. So far there have been two retirements and 18 resignations and about eight new teachers will be added to handle increased enrollment.

Eight-Year Old Buried Tuesday

Funeral services were held July 5 at West Parish Church for eight-year-old Michael Fitzpatrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah H. Fitzpatrick, 129 Lovejoy Rd., one of four victims in a June 30 drowning accident in Montana.

Young Fitzpatrick, his uncle John Fitzpatrick, 28, of Twin Creeks, Montana, and two pre-teen children were drowned in the Blackfoot River while attending a family reunion at McNamara's Landing, about 20 miles east of Missoula, Montana.

The first of the three children to drown jumped into the water to retrieve a sandal and was followed by the other two. Jeremiah Fitzpatrick's brother died in an attempt to save the youngsters.

The Andover family went to Mr. Fitzpatrick's home state for the reunion about two weeks ago. With them were two other children, Mark, six, and Paul, five. Mrs. Fitzpatrick is the former Elizabeth Bolioian of Andover.

LT. JOHN C. DOHERTY

Army Officer Home On Leave

Home on leave prior to reporting for assignment with U.S. combat forces in Vietnam is Army First Lieutenant John C. Doherty, son of Mr. and Mrs. John P. S. Doherty, 29 Juniper Rd.

Lt. Doherty has just returned from a tour of duty with Army intelligence in Italy.

The Army officer was graduated from Phillips Academy cum laude in 1959, from Harvard College cum laude in 1963 and he received a master's degree from the University of Pittsburgh where he studied as a Marshall fellow.

John Sweeney New Corpsman

John F. Sweeney, 25 Florence St., is one of 50 Peace Corps volunteers training at Stanford University, Stanford, Calif. for two years' service in the Philippines.

The trainees are under the general supervision of Prof. Dwight Allen of the Stanford school of education, whose micro-teaching techniques are being used to train the volunteers as "teachers of English as a second language" in the Philippine school systems.

Next September the Corpsmen will be assigned to urban and rural schools on the three major islands which make up the Philippine archipelago.

Micro-teaching - the scaling-down in time and size of the regular classroom situation - will be augmented by a strong Peace Corps staff of returned volunteers and Philippine nationals.

with the main body of teachers, pointing to SLRC rulings in Springfield, Pittsfield and Methuen to corroborate their contention that this is an appropriate classification.

This is among points to be clarified. Do the department heads in these communities have the same responsibility for teacher evaluation that those in the Andover system have?

The teachers' Association has set up a professional negotiation committee to act as its representative under the new law. Specifically, the teachers' unit will be represented by Bruce MacDonald, chairman, Wilbur Hixon, Robert Miner, James Murphy and Gerald Silverman.

The administrators' bargaining unit is to be represented by Joseph Normandy, principal of Sanborn School, Charles Adams, assistant principal at the high school and William Igoe, guidance director. In the discussion, association officials told the committee that the organization's membership would not have to ratify any contract agreement made with the school committee. They said the way the association is set up, the power to negotiate and make absolute agreements will rest with the negotiating teams.

The Discussion

With representatives of the teachers' association at Tuesday's meeting was Peter Delmonico, Essex County field worker for the Massachusetts Teachers Association.

In the discussion of a secret ballot, Delmonico expressed the opinion that the SLRC would toss out any request for an election in Andover since there is no competition for representation. Under the law, supervised balloting is required where two or more organizations seek to represent the same group of municipal employees, as they have recently in Lowell and Methuen.

The idea of a ballot here would simply be to determine the extent to which Andover teachers support the association as a representative organization.

There was conflict in the conversation Tuesday over just how many employees the teachers' association must represent in order to be accepted as the exclusive bargaining agent.

Some literature in the hands of the School Committee referred to a "majority", but Delmonico said the labor relations commission could approve exclusivity on proof of representation of as few as 30% of the professionals in the system. Gerald Silverman clarified this Wednesday by saying that such a small percentage could be ruled adequate by the SLRC in situations where there is no contest for representation.

(On this point the law says: "... an employee organization recognized by a municipal employer or designated as the representative of the majority of the employees in an appropriate unit shall be the exclusive bargaining agent for all employees of such unit. ...")

Representatives of the association charged that the committee's move to investigate the possibility of a ballot etc. was a delaying tactic that would interfere with the organization's preparations for negotiations and a 1967 contract. Should a vote be decided upon, they said, nothing could be done until the teachers return to work in the fall. All denied that they fear the outcome of an election in which teachers would be given the option of accepting or rejecting the association as their authorized representative.

Under the new law the School Committee MUST recognize as exclusive bargaining agent any organization designated by the majority of professional employees.

Chairman Galbiati seemed to sum up the attitude of the majority when he said at one point: "I am reluctant to commit our teachers to something when they really don't know what they are getting into."

Committeeman Doherty, on the other hand said he was satisfied with the cards signed by teachers as proof of representation. Indicating his objection to the idea of a ballot, he said, "We want to learn the hard way how to deal with the Labor Relations Commission."

TAX SURVEY

Men who do such work are conditioned to being unwelcome, though they report that most people in a community like Andover are cooperative if not overjoyed at the prospect of revaluation.

But they aren't fooled by much. Without lifting an eyelid they can see the curtains flutter when they drive into a new neighborhood, and they note with more amusement than dismay the ladies who shortly thereafter jump into their cars and head out on mysterious errands. It may be annoying not to wrap a block into a neat package the first time around, but the appraiser can afford to be relaxed about it all. He knows that follow-up calls will be made until someone does open the door - and that if that day never comes, an assessment will be made on the basis of an estimate. This may or may not work to the property owner's advantage. It is safer to play it fair and square.

What the field appraiser learns will be weighed in the balance by the top men at Whipple, McGane & Darcy Inc. These experts will be equipped with statistics on recent real estate transfers in a given area to help them in determining a final appraisal figure. Particularly significant this time around will be land values which have changed tremendously in some parts of Andover, particularly downtown.

Bringing tax assessments into line with these appraisals is the job of the local Board of Assessors.

So take heart. It is about as impartial a process as could be humanly devised. The men who work in the field and all the evaluators are brought in from out of town to make sure that no one has the inside edge.

(Appraisers are now at work on these streets or finishing up the neighborhoods they comprise: Haverhill, Sterling, Carlisle, Sutherland, High, Dufton, Linwood, Enmore, North Main, Balmoral, York, Carlsbrooke, Burnham, Argyle, Arundel, Salem, Wildwood (East of 125) Brentwood, Wethersfield, Tamys, Jenkins, Johnson Acres, Walnut St., Pine, Lucerne, Chestnut, Summer, Highland, Woodland, Robandy, Prospect and Gray.)

Appraisers have also started visiting commercial district properties.

Must Order Plates Early

Registrar of Motor Vehicles Richard E. McLaughlin announces that applications for distinctive initial plates (so-called vanity plates) received after July one cannot be guaranteed for delivery before the first of the year.

The extremely large volume of requests for these special plates has far exceeded expectations and manufacture and distribution cannot meet the huge demand made by the motoring public.

"Each applicant will be notified in sufficient time where and when to pick up his plates. If, for any sufficient reason, an application is not acceptable, the applicant will be notified. It will not help to call the Registry."

The Rules

In announcing the town swimming program for the 1966 recreation season, Director Leslie Bartow listed pond rules. There will be no public swimming at Pomps Monday through Friday and only children who are taking lessons will be allowed in the area.

Children under seven are to be accompanied by responsible adults at all times, both in and out of the water, Bartow added. And he urged residents to cooperate by keeping dogs away from all municipal playgrounds and the beach area for sanitary and safety reasons.

In discussing the playground program, Bartow said that beginning July 5 his department will offer an art class at Andover Recreation Park on Abbott Street for young people under the age of fourteen. Registration will be on the fifth.

In addition, he reported that a sports program will be started this year under the direction of Miklos Jako and H. Tucker Lake. Instruction in soccer, flag football, basketball, softball, volleyball, speedball and tennis will be provided as well as tournament and inter-playground competition. All local children interested in the playground program should report to the following neighborhood play areas or to the recreation park on Abbott Street on July 5: Central, Shawsheen, West, Ballardvale and Indian Ridge.

The playgrounds will be open five days a week through Aug. 26 from 9 to 12 noon and again from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. The Ballardvale area will be open from 5 to 8 p.m. also.

GET YOUR PHARMACIST'S HELP

Though the average American family has 12 prescriptions a year filled by a pharmacist, very few people use their pharmacist's skills and know-how to maximum advantage.

Because he keeps a record of your prescriptions, he can advise you against buying a patent medicine which might interfere with a medication you're already taking.

On the other hand, he is equipped to recommend proven products such as those that provide the most effective relief for minor digestive upsets or for annoying cold symptoms.

But don't expect your druggist to act as your doctor. He can't tell you how to treat a cold or headache or stomach pain that's unusually severe or persistent. That's your physician's province.

Recent Vets Get Benefits

While most of the interest shown in the so-called new GI Bill of Rights has been concerned with educational benefits, there are certain little-noted provisions that give the 4-million veterans affected under the new law certain Civil Service job preferences.

They get five points added to their scores in Civil Service tests and 10 points if they were disabled or were awarded the Purple Heart. In addition to the actual 5-or 10-points being added to their Civil Service test score, those veterans who have served since January 1955 thus become eligible for veterans preference in job selection. Prior to the enactment of the new GI Bill, veterans who served since 1955 did not receive veterans job preference even though they rated high on the tests.

Destruction of the SS Morro Castle by fire at sea in 1934 hastened research work which resulted in development of a fireproof material for ship bulkheads which is produced exclusively in a Massachusetts plant.

Weaver Will Duplicate Old Colonial Patterns

Mrs. Grace Reed, well known weaver and authority on the craft, has just discovered in the collection of the Reading Antiquarian Society, several quite rare pieces of linen loomed during the colonial period. At least two designs she considers of museum quality.

On Wednesday, July 13, Mrs. Reed will demonstrate weaving on a hand loom at the Parker Tavern, the 1694 saltbox house, 103 Washington Street, Reading, just south of the railroad station and two blocks west of Route 28. For the occasion she will reproduce on a five harness loom the towel in the so-called Bronson weave which she uncovered in the Society collection.

Over 30 years ago, Mrs. Reed wove from an authentic design a damask table cloth and napkins for the Raleigh Tavern at Colonial Williamsburg and the green fabric used for the cushions in the House of Burgesses. Since then she has taught weaving at the Lexington Adult Education Center, the Boston School of Occupational Therapy and the Boston Y.W.C.A. She did weaving research for the Robert E. Lee Birthplace in Virginia and produced many yards of fringe for dresser scarves at Mt. Vernon.

In the pine sheathed keeping room of the Parker Tavern, July 13 from 10 to 12 a.m. and 2 to 5 p.m. Mrs. Reed will weave and discuss the craft for all who may be interested. In addition to this demonstration, early hand work as bargele needle work, from the Society's collection will be exhibited.

During the morning, coffee will be served with home-made Anadama bread and Johnny cake.

Hostesses for the day will be Mrs. Raymond Amsden, Mrs. Robert Van Laethem, Mrs. Robert Barclay and Mrs. Edward Johnson. Ladies are asked please not to wear spike heels.

IRVING F. OPEN TUESDAY EVENINGS

Costly Messes

Summer is here. The season when vacationing Americans sally forth to make litter instead of hay as they flit across the countryside in search of opportunities for wholesome outdoor living and warm weather amusement . . . or reasonable facsimiles thereof.

It will cost a small fortune to collect the mess they leave behind, a mighty big small fortune. It takes, for example, an estimated $100 million annually just to keep state highways clean in the USA.

And in the Commonwealth? Former DPW Commissioner Francis W. Sargent reports that unless motorists using Massachusetts highways improve their "housekeeping habits" the state will soon be spending a half a million a year on roadside litter removal.

Says Sargent: "While we have found the installation of trash barrels along state highways has reduced the total cost of litter removal by some 43 percent, the fact remains that roadside litter takes a big bite out of the tax dollar.

"Most of this money represents pure waste. It is almost the same thing as vandalism."

But it can be more dangerous than vandalism, as Commissioner Sargent points out.

DPW studies show that each year a goodly number of highway fatalities can be attributed to litter. Drivers have been killed because they were blinded by some item tossed from a moving car or carelessly disposed of on the pavement.

Think about it the next time you see a cigarette package or a candy wrapper or an ice cream paper flutter out the window of your automobile.

Citizens' Alert

A few weeks ago an Andover resident recalled after a neighborhood housebreak that she had seen two strange men parked in an unfamiliar car for an unusual length of time within a short distance of the rifled residence.

Police Chief David Nicoll's lament at the time was: "Why weren't we notified before it was too late." If police were tipped to such out-of-the-ordinary events when they occur, officers could move in for preventative investigation, equipped with registration numbers and good descriptions.

Now, with the vacation season in full swing, is a good time to be wary of strangers and alert to the unusual. The right phone call could lead to an arrest that would solve a string of housebreaks . . . and perhaps prevent one.

If you are worried about being considered a crank, don't be. The Chief says his men would rather track down a few false leads than miss out on a solid one.

Compact Comment

Congratulations to Henry M. Wolfson on his retirement from Western Electric Co. for which in recent years he has been assistant manager of quality control engineering at the Merrimack Valley Works.

Henry has been missed since his illness of some months ago forced early retirement from activity in public affairs. The fact that he and his wife intend to remain in town is a clear indication, however, that his interest in Andover is unabated.

It takes individual action - national greatness is a product of sense, not census. Detroit Emergency Press

What Our Readers Say

Bury A Myth

To the Editor of the Townsman
It is refreshing to have an editor suggest that adding a year of education for our teachers may add nothing to their teaching ability. This is because education tests performance as a student, not as a teacher. It's a matter of which side of the desk a person occupies.

What will it profit a town to have nothing but Ph.D's on its staff if they don't know how to communicate what they know so well?

What puzzles me is why we need a spread of 15 or 16 years of education between teacher and pupil at the second grade level but only five or six years at the twelfth grade level.

In any case teacher evaluation is still the real business of our administrators. There are two ways to do this.

The cheap and easy way is to examine a person's credentials as a student. For this we don't need high-priced administrators.

The hard but valid way is to monitor teacher performance in the classroom. To do this right we need administrators worthy of their hire.

Nothing could do more for the educational standards of this community than the common knowledge in educational circles that Andover has the insight to know the difference between superior and inferior teaching and that we also have the intelligence to do something about it.

The answer to the problem of indifferent teaching is not to be found in making teachers into students of longer duration.

The answer, I believe will be found only by first burying the old "equal and excellent" myth.

If our teachers association wants to get seriously involved in policy making, it is here that it can show its stature and statesmanship.

Would You Believe It? Mosquitoes Are Scarce

For a comparatively rare New England insect, the mosquito attracts considerable attention.

Sounds strange to call mosquitoes rare? Their habits rather than numbers make mosquitoes seem abundant. The grass, bushes, trees carry loads of insects. But, of all the horde, only the mosquito seeks you. There may be thousands of other insects that you seldom see, but if there are five female mosquitoes, they will home in on you like a surface-to-air rocket headed for a plane.

Perhaps you never thought of mosquitoes as being flies, distant relatives, in fact, of the house fly. Nor, that there are more than 2500 species of mosquitoes around the world, and that most species live on such food as nectar and never bite humans nor any other animal.

Mosquitoes have at least two clues that alert them to the presence of a human or other warm-blooded creature: body heat and carbon dioxide. Experiments indicate that female mosquitoes will be attracted to any source of heat that is 10 degrees warmer than the prevailing climatic temperature. The human temperature of 98.6 degrees usually supplies such a differential with air temperatures, especially in the coolness of dawn or dusk when most mosquitoes fly.

The mosquitoes' sensitivity to carbon dioxide - which is a major component of any animal's breath - seems associated with appetite. Researchers who raise colonies of mosquitoes for experiments have discovered that the most efficient method of inducing them to feed is to breathe into the mosquito container. Mosquitoes which have shown no interest in food suddenly become very hungry in the presence of carbon dioxide.

A diet deficiency in youth causes adult female mosquitoes to seek blood. Culex pipiens, the common house mosquito, cannot develop eggs without a blood meal. Its near relative, Culex molestus, however can produce eggs while living on a diet of nectar. The difference between them, investigators believe, consists of the amount of protein each species accumulated while in the larva (non-flying) stage.

Culex molestus has a heavy charge of protein in its body when it takes wing from its watery nursery. Culex pipiens, on the other hand, does not contain enough protein to form volks for its eggs. Thus, it must obtain protein by sucking blood.

Male mosquitoes do not bite people. Their mouths are shaped quite differently from the females', making it impossible for them to bite. The males live on saps and nectar.

Temperature and humidity affect - almost to the point of control - the activities of mosquitoes. They prefer warm, rather than hot, temperatures and high humidity. These conditions occur at dusk and dawn, which is why most mosquitoes become active at these periods. Most mosquitoes will not fly in hot, dry sunshine. Their bodies are inefficient in controlling loss of moisture and dry heat can kill them.

The control of mosquitoes has vexed men since pre-history. Most measures that have been tried - from the draining of the Pontine Marshes to recent use of DDT - have caused widespread damage to desirable wildlife. In the last three years, several New England states have taken a closer look at the damage chemical control extracts. The present trend is away from DDT and Prof. E. H. Wheeler of the University of Massachusetts has been a leader toward saner approaches to an ages-old problem.

As Others See It Education

State and local governments have abdicated, willingly or otherwise, all manner of responsibilities to the federal government. The result has been to put the nonfederal governments in much the position of mendicants, going hat in hand to Washington for more and more of their needs and wants.

A particularly alarming trend is found in the field of education. The proposed federal budget for the next fiscal year contains appropriations totaling an astonishing $10 billion for education, according to the Portland Oregonian, not long ago only about $1 billion each $100 spent for education at the local level came from the federal government. Now the figure approaches $10 in each $100.

This caused the paper to say: "... the states should not leave the doing to the federal government. The states and localities must remain the senior partner in education unless they are willing to acquiesce in a fundamental change in American education in which central control is substituted for local control - an arrangement which is not recommended by its practice in many other countries."

When the federal government pays, the federal government controls and orders. If the present trend continues, it won't be long until Washington is the absolute boss of education . . . and local authorities are powerless administrative agencies through which federal funds are siphoned for purposes . . . decided upon by federal agencies. One can hardly conceive of a less appealing situation than that.

More than 250 delegates and accredited visitors from Congregational churches in 20 countries and every continent will gather in Swansea, Wales, July 7-11, for the 10th assembly of the International Congregational Council.

Attending as accredited visitors will be Mr. and Mrs. James S.
Eastham, 16 Alden Rd.

The most important issue facing the assembly will be a proposal to unite with the World Alliance of the Reformed Churches Holding the Presbyterian Form of Government. The United Church of Christ in the U.S.A., the largest church in the International Congregational Council, is already a member of the Alliance. (The United Church of Christ is a union of the Congregational Christian and the Evangelical and Reformed Churches.)

Spokesmen of the United Church of Christ delegation are on record as supporting the union of the Congregational and Presbyterian world bodies.

The Congregational Council is expected to adopt a new constitution that will permit union with the Alliance.

The International Congregational Council is a world-wide organization founded in 1891. Member churches leave to local congregations the powers to own property, to call and dismiss ministers, and to decide forms of worship and doctrinal beliefs. Congregational churches traditionally associate with each other on a voluntary basis in local associations of churches, national denominations and, internationally, in the ICC.

The theme of the ICC assembly will be "A Reformed Church in a New Age."

The delegates will review the purposes and future of Congregationalism in relation to "significant world-wide changes in the life of the Christian churches," the Rev. Ralph F. G. Calder, London, minister and secretary of the ICC, said. Among these changes are "a sharpened apprehension of the unity of church and mission, a greater urgency for achieving church union and realization of the need for more adequate communication between Christianity and the world," he added.

The largest delegations to the Council assembly will come from the Congregational churches of Great Britain and the United Church of Christ in the United States of America.

Congregationalism as a form of church organization had its origins in England in the 16th Century. The first Congregationalists were Separatists who left the Church of England in protest against its liturgical practices and what they believed to be a limitation on freedom of individual judgment and conscience in interpreting the Scriptures.

They were forced to leave England and take refuge in Holland.
They later emigrated to the New World as the Pilgrims and founded the Plymouth Colony in Massachusetts in 1620.

The early Separatists were followed to Massachusetts Bay by the Puritans, dissenters holding views similar to those of the Pilgrims but who had not yet broken off ties with the Church of England. The Puritans had as their objective the reformation of the Church of England from within. They found this aim impossible of accomplishment and emigrated to the New World where they adopted a Congregational form of government.

A Massachusetts firm during World War II produced more than 1,300,000 revolvers for Allied Forces.

RACES Not To Blame For TV Interference

If radio interference is disrupting the WGBH TV signal at your house, you had better look at your receiving set or Channel 2 for the explanation.

Civil Defense Director Burton B. Batcheller said Tuesday that his local network of Civil Defense mobile radio units is perpetually blamed because its test signals are heard by television viewers. But he states unequivocally that this is not because CD volunteers mishandle their broadcasting.

The town tests its Radio Amateur Civilian Emergency System weekly at 8 p.m. on Monday. It is a process that takes about 20 minutes to one half hour, Batcheller reports. All such signal tests are made on a prescribed frequency assigned to the town by the FCC, the director explains.

Television viewers complaints have kept the local CD official on his toes. Frequent enough checks have been made to give him the confidence to state that he is certain Andover CD units are operating on the prescribed frequency.

There can apparently be one of three possible explanations for the interference experienced: Channel 2 is not backing its signal with sufficient power; the television sets affected are not receiving on a fine enough band; or ham radio operators who have free access to a number of bands are hitting on the WGBH frequency. The town's emergency radio system operates at a frequency of 50.68.

Batcheller says Andover has from 17 to 20 mobile radio units participating in weekly tests. The volunteer operators who carry these units in their automobiles stand ready to assist the town not only in the event of a national defense emergency, but when called upon in the case of natural disasters etc.

Degree Issue Is Unsettled

It will be September at least before action is taken by the School Committee to step up educational requirements for teachers hired locally to fill secondary school positions.

Former Chairman Robert Sherman tried again Tuesday and failed to get action on his motion of last month which would make a master's degree mandatory. He surprised the committee, however, by restating it without incorporating any of the compromises which appeared to represent majority thinking at the last session.

Sherman proposed flatly that as of 1968-69, all candidates for teaching positions in the junior and senior high school be required to have a master's and that they be certified in the subject which they are hired to teach.

Two weeks ago the Andover Teachers Assn. proposed a compromise which would have given teachers five years to complete master's degree work. Sherman proposed an amendment providing then proposed an amendment providing for a three year period of grace, but by Tuesday he had deleted any mention of a delayed-action clause.

There was renewed talk of a five-year period of grace and Mrs. Virginia H. Cole also indicated her desire to see some amendment which would require a certain number of degree hours to be completed prior to the granting of tenure, three years after employment. Officials of the teachers association at the meeting thought her suggestion of 15 hours too restrictive.

When it appeared that agreement could not be reached readily, Committeeman William A. Doherty moved that the association be asked to prepare a recommendation for consideration at the committee's next meeting Sept. 11.

offset by funds anticipated as the local share of sales tax revenues, Assessor Russell says. Municipal budgets were made with the usual local projections for state reimbursement funds in mind.

Further controlling the tax rate was a healthy increase in taxable real estate. The total value of all taxable real property in 1966 is $108,356,400, up $6 million over the previous year. This is the largest single-year increase in valuations in Andover's history. Of the $33 tax rate, $22.70 is school tax and $10.30 is that portion of the per thousand rate needed to cover other municipal expenditures. The Department of Corporations has revised the system of determining school and general tax rates, making for a more realistic picture of the distribution of public funds, Russell reports.
